

To whom it may concern

Abirami Baskaran was a student in Higher Nitec of Electronics Engineering at Institute of Technical Education (ITE) College Central Singapore from 2020 to 2022.

Abirami Baskaran was an earnest and energetic student who sought to do her best in the tasks she undertook. Peers found her a friendly and jovial individual who was not averse to helping a friend in need. Abirami not only helps her classmates with Internet of Things (IoT) projects but also creates informative revision notes and study guides to help her classmates understand the module. Due to her interest in programming, she has self-learned and has used many online resources to improve her knowledge of Python programming. On February 2022, Abirami created a series of Python programming codes and demonstrated her technical skills during the ITE Innovation and Enterprising Day. She explained about programming and how to do coding with python to participants.

Abirami has also volunteered at various outreach programmes where she contributes to the community. In 2020, she participated in the "President's Challenge #CareKitwithLove" where she engaged with students with special needs through a Zoom call. The external volunteer who helped facilitate the programme noticed Abirami's gentle nature and gave positive feedback. On the same year, from July to October, she participated in the "Bone Marrow Donor Programme" where she created advertisements to raise awareness about incurable blood diseases and encouraged the public to sign up for the programme. Abirami also participated in the "Spright Academy March Holidays Activities" where she engaged with children from deprived backgrounds. As she was caring and friendly to the children, she made a strong impact with some of them.

Abirami has always been well prepared and diligent in all assignments and competitions. She puts in her full effort in all projects and has led her team several times when the opportunity arose. In 2020 and 2021, she participated in the "SG75" competition representing her Student Council CCA and ITE College Central. She was elected leader of her group in both years. Abirami was polite and tactful towards her group members. She paid attention to the mental state of her group members and ensured that they were not overwhelmed. This shows her care for others and leadership qualities exudes from her. In 2020, Abirami participated in the "Asia Virtual Exposure Series", where she collaborated with students and teachers in Vietnam on a business building project. She was humbled and was willing to work late hours on this project due to the country's regional schedules.

Abirami's inquisitiveness and her eagerness to give her full effort to any given task will be a valuable skill set and would benefit any organization she joins.
